Editorial By Alex. H. Washburn

THE national commander of the Silver Shirts writes the editor a letter, and we are printing it on today's front page. It is inflammatory. It strikes at the foundation of Americanism, religious liberty. It is seditious. It gnaws away at public confidence in a brave and resourceful president by cowardly attacking his NRA program. It is a pack of lies compounded by a propagandist—but I give it to you so that you may know the measure of the men parading around this country with the silver "I." The newspaper rule is: Give the people light and they will find their own way.

6 Persons Drown as Terrific Gale Whips East Coast

Northeast Descends Suddenly on Week-End Fishing Fleets

FATHERS TERRIFIED

Tidal Wave Sweeps Beach at Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—

(AP)—Six persons Monday were known to be drowned in a terrific northeaster that lashed the Jersey coast Sunday.

The storm descended suddenly, tossing a comparatively calm sea into a fury, catching scores of fishing craft off guard.

Four of Dead

Four of the dead are:

Theodore Van Sant, 58, fishing boat skipper.

"Sopli" Bruner, of Marmora, also a skipper.

Wilbur Lukens, Philadelphia, for many years keeper of the Philadelphia National's baseball park.

Harry R. Smith, Camden, N. J.

All four were aboard boats struck by the wind, said to have been of hurricane force. In addition, the Eddie R., a cabin cruiser that had started from Jobs Point with four persons as passengers, was wrecked, and the passengers were believed missing.

At least three aboard the Anna M., an auxiliary fishing boat, were believed drowned. It was reported that three of the six that started out Sunday morning were saved but that was not verified.

Smith, whose body was washed ashore, was one of the group on the Anna M.

Other Boats Missing

Many other craft, large and small, which had started from Ocean City and Absecon inlet, had not reported back and reports were that about 25 had headed down the coast to Cold Spring Harbor, Cape May.

Besides the damage to boats and drownings in the inlet, bathers, too, were panic-stricken as a huge wave struck the beach at the height of the storm. More than 100 were endangered but none was believed drowned. One, Fred H. Ghermer, 23, of Drexel Hill, Pa., was battered down and suffered a neck fracture.

Local Market for $720,000 Furniture

That Was Gross Business for This Territory in Year 1930

What does the return of prosperity hold in store for furniture dealers? Although furniture is only slightly higher now than the prices prevailing early in this year, the lowest in 20 years, local dealers report fairly large stocks bought before labor and raw material costs started mounting.

Most of them, however, had sold out of mattresses made before the cotton processing tax added 42c a pound for all cotton products July 18th. This tax will be collected on all dealers' stocks purchased before that date, and left on hand September 1. But dealers expect the greatest volume this fall in four years, and as present stocks are exhausted, prices will be much higher.

Hempstead county furniture stores sold an average of $11.99 worth of furniture and household goods to each individual in Hempstead county in 1930, according to the Market Data Handbook of the U. S. Department of Commerce—a total of $720,000 worth of business. Howard county sales, however, surpassed with a per capita average of $12.57. It will be remembered that Howard county does not depend upon cotton like other counties in this section, and fared better during the year of the drought than their neighbors. Total furniture sales were $220,000.

Lafayette county furniture stores sold $138,000 worth, for a per capita average of $7.57.

Sales for Nevada county were not revealed, since there were only two furniture stores in that county, and figures are not revealed for any line of business unless there are more than two such stores in the county.

The other three counties sold a total of $720,000 worth of household goods and furniture.

I believe in America as our forefathers gave her to us, and as we have her now.

The Silver Shirts would give us another kind of America.

When you read the letter of the Silver Shirts' leader just remember this: All propagandists begin by announcing that there are no other gods before them.

The government is in the hands of the enemy.

The newspapers don't tell the truth. The only honesty, the only truth, is in the hands of the propagandist.

You may be that kind of a man who would believe the leader of the Silver Shirts before you would President Roosevelt.

You may believe one tirade from a propagandist is worth more than a newspaper painfully and expensively filled with facts reported by the Associated Press.

You may be that kind of a man—

but against you are arrayed about 90 per cent of Americans, who, if necessary, had rather deal with crooked men they know, than with the dark and treacherous and sinister forces of conspiracy.

X X X

For your information, the charge against the integrity of American newspapers is merely a stupid revival of the charges originated by the Ku Klux Klan—that the Associated Press was dominated by Catholics and Jews. As a matter of fact, eight of the nine Associated Press directors were Protestants—for no reason at all, of course, except that the whole United States is predominantly Protestant, extending to the press as in other trade and professional lines.

To attack defenseless minorities was cowardly, and of cowardice the Klan finally died.

So much for the Silver Shirts.

Here is a suggestion from R. B. Stanford, former district highway engineer, regarding the protection of children who next month will be crowding Brookwood schoolyard:

"One of the matters which some of our civic clubs should interest themselves in is a high wire mesh fence along the school yard on East Third street at the Brookwood school."

"A proper fence there would prevent the kids from rushing out into the street except at the corners, and I am sure would tend to prevent accidents. Also, the highway department should put up Caution and School signs so that tourists will have warning when driving into a school zone."

"I have been advocating that fence for a long time."

Paris Bank Thug Is Brought Back

Beer Passage and Adjournment Near

Senate Bill Will Hit House Tuesday; to Quit by Friday

Optimistic Feeling at Capital as Second Week Is Begun

SEEK COMPROMISE

Local Option Issue Is Major Difference Between Houses

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) —

Final enactment of all measures in the governor's official call, including bills for the legalization of beer and continuation of the Highway

BULLETIN

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — The senate Monday afternoon passed its own beer bill by a 22 to 9 vote and ordered it immediately transmitted to the house. The emergency clause was adopted 29 to 1. The house has passed its own beer bill, differing in some major respects from the senate bill. It is now in the senate.

Audit Commission of three members, and sine die adjournment by Friday noon, was the ambitious goal of the special session of the legislature as it reconvened Monday afternoon.

The senate immediately plunged into a roll call on its own beer bill, distributing the revenue six ways.

The bill will be sent to the house immediately after passage to secure final action there Tuesday if the local option issue and revenue distribution differences are compromised.

Appropriation Exhausted

With no appropriation left for paying the members after Monday night, the house upon reconvening Monday afternoon began speedy action of the legislation still pending.

Speaker Toney told the house if it would "stick to business" for the next hour it would be able to notify the governor that all the work for which it had been called was disposed of by the house.

The $100,000 appropriation for the session, set by Governor Futrell as the limit for expenses, is sufficient only to pay the per diem of members and their expenses through Monday. Should an additional appropriation be made the legislature would have to remain in session three days to get the bill through.

Works Bill Amended

The house passed a bill amending the "Mother Hubbard" act of the special session to make its provision applicable to the State Advisory Committee on federal public works.

A concurrent resolution by Ellis, of Benton, and Thorn of Poinsett, providing for a joint legislative committee to sit with the governor's board regarding the committee in its present negotiations with the bondholders on the refunding plan, was adopted.

Memphis Highway Virtually Finished

Only 7 Miles Uncovered by Contracts for Paving

LITTLE ROCK — Awarding of contracts Thursday by the State Highway Department for seven miles of concrete paving on Highway 70 between Little Rock and Memphis brought under contract for hard surfacing all unfinished sections of that highway, except about three miles between DeValls Bluff and Biscoe and about four miles at Madison near Widener where a new bridge is being constructed across St. Francis river.

Six miles of the paving for which a contract was awarded Thursday is on the high dump across Cache river bottom between Brasfield and Brinkley. The old gravel road will be available as a detour. The contract calls for completion of the work within 110 calendar days from the time a work order is issued.

Natorium Group Will Get Hearing

Public Works Board to Confirm L. R. Date for Thursday

HOPE'S joint committee on the municipal natorium project received tentative confirmation Monday that the Public Works Advisory Board would welcome them at a public hearing in Little Rock Thursday, August 24.

A. H. Washburn, of the citizens committee, received the following telegram Monday from Hayley M. Bennett, Little Rock, secretary of the State Advisory Board of the Public Works Administration:

L. A. Keith was added to the advisory committee Monday, since Roy Anderson, one of the original committeemen, is out of the city and will be unable to attend at Little Rock. The advisory committee will be comprised of: Theo P. Witt, W. A. Lewis, Mr. Keith. On the citizens committee are: Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, W. S. Atkins, Mr. Washburn.

City Assessments Will Be Reviewed

Equalization Board Now Sitting at Hope City Hall

The organization meeting of the Hempstead county equalization board was held Monday morning at the county courthouse in Washington for the purpose of making adjustments in assessments returned this year on city or personal property by tax assessors John W. Ridgill and his deputy, Mrs. C. F. Onstead.

Members of the board are: A. H. Wade of Blevins, chairman; Arthur C. Anderson, of Washington, clerk; R. A. Carrigan of Ozan, and S. F. Huntley of Hope.

After the organization, the board established headquarters in the city hall where it will be in session for several days before visiting the various incorporated towns of the county.

Owners who are dissatisfied with assessments on their real estate may appeal for an adjustment through the board.

With the taxbooks virtually completed Mr. Ridgill said Monday that the figures will show considerable reduction from the 1932 total, which was the basis for taxes collected this year.

Rural property and city property are assessed on alternate years, city real estate being assessed this year.

L. R. Payroll Gain Reaches $40,000

Total of 463 Employees Added Under NRA Blue Eagle

LITTLE ROCK — Reports of 12 Little Rock business firms filed at Little Rock Chamber of Commerce offices during the week ending Saturday showed that they have employed 51 persons as the result of the NRA campaign here and have increased their monthly pay rolls $4,123.75.

Saturday's report brings the total employed here in the campaign to 463 and the monthly pay roll increases to $40,406.90.

Extra time that a skilled workman may put in on a special job or "time bonus" over the eight-hour daily maximum, which has been specified for the skilled workman class, need not be subtracted from his weekly maximum hours, a regulation received yesterday by M. H. Thompson, secretary to the NRA Central Committee here, from W. B. Henderson, district manager for the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Memphis and head of the NRA program in this zone, said. However, the workman must be paid time and one-third for the excess hours worked.

Couzens Declares Banks Kited Checks

Senator Says There Was Fraud in Detroit February Crash

DETROIT, Mich. — (AP) — Senator Couzens Monday told the jury investigating the Detroit banks which closed last February that "there had been all kinds of check-kiting" in an effort to mislead the public as to the actual condition of the two big national banks.

The Michigan senator, declined to give the source of his information on the ground that it was confidential, said he was satisfied that "if the prosecutor goes into the dealings between the two groups he will find all kinds of kiting of checks."

"This is a very serious situation," the senator said. "I am informed that on one occasion the Detroit Trust company got 6 million dollars from the First National of Detroit. It then turned around and deposited this 6 million with the First National as a trust fund."

The net effect of this was to show that each bank had 6 million cash more than it actually had.

Seditious Policy of Silver Shirts, Shown

National Commander's Letter to The Star Attacks Roosevelt and NRA, as Well as Baiting the Jews

Editor The Star: The caustic editorial on the Silver Legion, which you published in your issue of August 14th, has been sent me by numbers of our men in Hope, and it was most interesting to read.

I can understand thoroughly how you might jump to the conclusions which it is evident you have, being far removed from Washington as you are, and dependent for your news of what is going on, on the conventional reporting agencies or government agencies expressly set up to see that the country press tells the people of the nation what they want told them.

Having been a country publisher for 15 years of my life, as you must recall from my stories of The Paris (VU) Telegraph in The American Magazine, I can appreciate your problems and your viewpoint. Knowing something of the country press, however, I believe it is essentially interested in fair play. If the crookedest political and commercial gang in history is adroitly engaged in selling the nation out to aliens, I believe that when our hinterland newspaper editors find out the appalling extent of the facts, it will be from them that the greatest support comes for a New Deal that truly is a New Deal.

May I, in all fraternal good-feeling, correct the unfortunate impression which you hold, that the Silver Shirts are receivers for the bankrupt Klan, that we are dictatorial Fascists, or that we have any connection with the Hitler Movement other than knowing accurately what the Hitlerites are truly fighting for, measures and ends which the American people are not permitted to know because of the press censorship.

We are a sane, reasonable, clear-brained, and WELL-INFORMED aggregation of patriotic Americans, predominantly Protestant-Christians, who know what it is going on behind the scenes of our government and are forming a Christian Militia to treat with it—legally, rationally, constructively, but rigorously to the final degree. You may think this a bit bombastic, but if you would take time to look into the personnel of this organization and the men who are supporting, endorsing, and promoting it, you would realize that the very cream of the nation, in its most awakened men, is revealed in its meteorically

Cotton Inflation Urged on Wallace

Southern Members Ask Immediate Action on 1933-34 Acreage

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A four-point program to aid cotton prices for the farmer was laid before Secretary of Agriculture Wallace Monday by a delegation of members of congress from the Southern states.

The delegation urged:

1. An early announcement of an acreage reduction program for the next two years.

2. An early hearing to determine whether a readjustment in the rate of the present processing tax of 4.2 cents per pound should be made.

3. The early levying of compensatory processing taxes on products competing with cotton.

4. Inflation without further delay.

"Battle Won," Johnson

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Hugh S. Johnson has tentatively set mid-November, or the end of the year at the latest, for his retirement from the task of setting industry back on its feet.

He expects the emergency job to be done by then and will sit back and watch it operate under a permanent administrator while he returns to the life of an industrialist and takes some of his own medicine.

This was learned authoritatively Sunday as the administrator began what he believes is the "down hill pull" of bringing all industries under codes of fair competition designed to restore the nation's purchasing power.

The former soldier partially confirmed his plans in answer to a query.

"I don't want any political job," he said. "And I have a living to make. But I will be here until the job is done."

He has said repeatedly that "nothing would suit me better than to walk right out that door."

Two dates originally were set by Johnson as milestones in the program of the recovery program: "First, Labor Day, by which time he expects to have the bulk of the nation's employees under permanent codes or temporary modified presidential re-employment agreements with millions of new jobs created; second, December 31, when the re-employment drive is scheduled to end.

But the drawing of the steel and oil industries under a code has wormed itself in as a key date. Faced by these powerful industries with their ramified financial connections, Johnson was represented as believing that the winning or losing of this battle last week would make the turning point in the recovery program. And it was won.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Code Readers to Feel NRA

More Heat Expected

By ROBERT BUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Work for some hot developments in connection with enforcement of the president's blanket code.

NRA officials are gravely concerned by the telegrams from cities throughout the country, demanding help or advice in cases arising from violation or refusal to sign up. Many of these are from chambers of commerce or local civic officials.

The man who signed up, shortened hours, raised low wages and hired new employees in good faith emits a sad groan as his competitor—a non-signer—faces him with ruthless competition made possible by lower costs.

More "Heat" Expected
An example of the sort of thing that can happen is reported from Maryland. A large, nationally known canning firm is operating under the code. Alongside it is another corporation which is paying its workers 10 cents an hour. The tomato canning season will soon be over, leaving the first company operating at a disadvantage for the next year.

After the first rush of code acceptance came another rush of inquiries from employers who had no surplus with which to tide them over the extra costs in the immediate future. Apparently they will have to be granted temporary extensions.

Recent tendency has been to place campaign responsibility for decisions on local agencies. But more "heat" is sure to be turned on from Washington.

Popular Support Seen
One thing every administration official agrees upon:
The plain people of the country are still solidly behind Roosevelt and may be counted upon to support him in any venture he is likely to undertake.

That's important because nearly everyone expects further measures of government control. Washington may find itself in serious conflict with powerful segments of finance and industry.

The facts behind the end of the coal strike in Fayette County, Pa., as privately reported here, bear out the inference from hundreds of thousands of letters and telegrams to Washington that the president retains unprecedented popularity.

Trusted Roosevelt
The miners who returned to work after NRA Labor Advisor Ed McGrady appealed to them in Roosevelt's name weren't interested in the national mediation set-up or the members of its board. They put their trust in Roosevelt alone, believing he was their best possible bet.

The U. S. Steel-owned Frick Co. had spread word that it wouldn't come under any NRA coal code. The mine told McGrady they knew Roosevelt would compel the company to come in.

Hogs Stayed at Home
It seems quite worthy of note that the first conference on hogs called by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration was held in the Palm Room of the Hotel Willard. Representatives of producers, marketing agencies, processors, wholesalers and butchers were there. They brought no hogs.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Here's an Exercise to Aid Your Posture

The charm of a nice complexion and well-groomed hair is lost if your posture is bad.

No matter how tired you are, don't allow your shoulders to slump. They should be straight and square. Clothes are not made for round shouldered women and you can't expect them to look well on you if your shoulders droop.

Stand erect always. Your weight should be on the balls of both feet. Don't put your weight on your heels. It makes the calves of your legs stand out in awkward manner.

One good exercise which will straighten your back and shoulders is simple and requires little time.

For the LOVE of EVE

By Lucy Walling

BEHIND THE SCENES TODAY
EVE HATFIELD, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of High's department store, who is much attracted by her, she visits IRVING FRENCH, former schoolmate who is playing the stock market.

On her wedding night Eve is sent to New York to meet FREDA CARTER, dress buyer. There Eve meets THERON BROWN, who is much attracted by her, she visits IRVING FRENCH, former schoolmate who is playing the stock market.

A week later Eve returns to Little City to find a new copy writer, DONA ALLEN, at the office. Mona is a trouble-maker. Eve and Dick take an apartment on the corner of Main and Second streets. Eve works hard, devoting more and more time and energy to her work at the office. Dick decides also needs a rest and takes her for a week-end trip to the little town of Tamkinville.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XIII
TAMKINVILLE boasted two hotels but one of them was only open during the tourist season so Dick took Eve to the other, the Hotel Cortley. She glanced about the lobby while he signed the register. The walls were of tan plaster and two columns of speckled granite supported a dingy ceiling. There were two day-ports and a few arm chairs upholstered in red mohair. A pair of elk's horns was mounted above the clerk's desk. There was a rubber plant and a row of books. The backs belonged to men lined up inside the window who had seen Eve and Dick coming down Center street. This privilege of watching the comings and goings in Center street was granted to guests of the Hotel Cortley.

Eve and Dick were transported to the third floor by a rickety elevator in a lacy iron cage. The row of backs turned as the elevator door clanked and a row of faces watched them disappear. Eve registered extreme hauteur. As the bellboy led the way to the far end of the corridor Eve noted with interest the number of pieces of carpeting in different colors and designs on that floor. "Thrill here," she noted. "As an area wears out it is replaced instead of buying enough for the entire floor."

Later they walked up Center street and mingled with the crowd. Tamkinville was the "market town" thereabouts and whole families as well as young couples drove in from the hills for Saturday shopping and the movies.

Eve selected a tiny white restaurant for their evening meal because of the fresh dotted, ruffled curtains hung in the window. Nothing on the menu appealed to them, however, and they waited a long time while the proprietor went to the butcher shop to purchase clams. He had assured them it would be no trouble at all to serve the clams on the half shell, but when they finally were served, mince, minced, Eve and Dick found them lukewarm. Instead of cold and both felt they had learned a lesson.

"The Fair," Tamkinville's leading store, offered Saturday specials in women's and men's apparel. Eve was surprised to note how up-to-date the stock was. She managed to have a chat with the dress buyer who was sent to New York each year and Eve was immediately impressed by the woman's alert manner and thorough knowledge of her field.

Afterward Eve and Dick dropped in at a motion picture theater. So busy had they been lately that a movie seemed to involve a luxurious expenditure of time. When the lights went up a young lad sitting next to Eve remarked to the girl beside him, "Right nice room they have here." But Dick, after an appraising glance about him stated, "They wasted no money building this place." Later he and Eve mounted the stairs to look at the balcony and Dick rapped softly along the wall. "Cheap construction here all right," he whispered. "But all pleasing to the average eye—very pleasing. They have enough live exits, anyway," he added.

Eve felt like a person somewhat detached from herself as they wandered back to the Cortley. Not a familiar face in sight, the townspeople often turning their heads to look at Eve and Dick passed, the simplicity of the business life, the leisurely pace. A feeling began to steal over Eve that perhaps Bixby's was not as important to the world as she had imagined it to be.

"Dick," she said later as they lay awake in their hotel room, the lights out, shades up and rays from the Center street arc light filtering through the cracks of the shutters. "For the present—if we could afford it—this water bench would be a more useful piece for us. Pennsylvania Dutch. The open shelves above would display plates and bric-a-brac as well or better than the what-not and the cupboard below would provide useful storage space."

"But it's so frightfully shabby," Eve objected.

"It could be painted any color you'd like," answered Dick simply. "Well, it would be nice," agreed Eve. "Better than the what-not. But you wouldn't be so fond of that, Corner shelves are fashionable again."

Dick was unperturbed. "Some of these things are graceful and pretty," he conceded. "Aunt Sophronia had one with spool turnings. Probably has it stowed away in the attic. We'll see sometime when we're down east."

"And do look at this, Dick," Eve tugged at his arm and drew him to a corner of the shop to look at a chest of drawers. "Oh, Dick, we ought to have this. You can't say it's not old."

"Dick surveyed the piece but without enthusiasm. 'Knobs fastened on with wood screws. Pat together with wood pins. About a hundred years,' he estimated its age. 'Perhaps more. And a good job of veneering. The bracket feet and the carved acanthus leaves on the posts are rather unusual. And it has a serpentine top drawer. Not bad.'"

"Not bad," Eve mocked him. "Is that the most praise you can give it? Don't you think we might buy it, Dick? This and the water bench and that cute little stand over there—the one with two drawers and drop leaves."

Dick looked. "The 'cute little stand' is buried apple wood," he said. "It probably would set us back the price of two months' rent."

But Eve would not let her enthusiasm be dampened. She pounced upon a pair of candlesticks in sparkling yellow glass. The staff was in the form of a fish, balancing itself gracefully on its chin. "Oh—" she exclaimed, "aren't these simply darling, Dick?"

Dick grinned tolerantly. "Can't say that they are," he returned. "Never could see anything particularly darling about a dolphin—or any other fish, for that matter." He picked up one of the pair, looked at the price mark and set it down with great care. "Fifty dollars for the pair!" he ejaculated. "If not darling, they're at least dear," he conceded. Eve looked at him reproachfully. He knew she hated puns.

"Well, anyway, we simply must get that little spinning-wheel for the bay window. I've always wanted a spinning-wheel," Eve coaxed.

Dick's mother had had a spinning-wheel like the one in question. But when the furnishings of his boyhood home had been auctioned off no one regarded it of any value. Dick, the only one who had felt any sentimental regard for it, was to make his life anew in other cities and thus was unable to keep either that or the old rosewood organ his mother had played. He purchased the spinning wheel for Eve and they loaded it in the rumble seat.

Eve had jotted down prices and the name of the shop. It was the fashionable thing now to have at least one room with antique furnishings or reproductions of antiques.

"I'll just send for some of those pieces I admired a little later," she whispered to the proprietor as she left.

The Yankees consigned a pitcher named Johnny Broaca to their Newark farm the other day for seasoning. But in some respects Johnny Broaca needs no seasoning at all. The story back of that is this:

One day last spring the veteran major league "Smoky Joe" Woods, looking over his crop of budding young pitchers at Yale. An important ball game with a picked team of town players led by Albie Booth was about to begin. Naturally Yale didn't want to be beaten by the "townies," so Coach Wood called over his star pitcher whose name happened to be Johnny Broaca.

"You work today, Johnny," said Coach Joe. "Pardon Me, Joe"

But Johnny, who had pitched a game a few days before, had a different idea. "No, coach," replied Johnny. "I'm not going to ruin my arm for you, Yale or anybody else. I'm not going to pitch more than once a week."

"Either you pitch or turn in your uniform," snapped the coach.

"You win the uniform," was Johnny Broaca's reply.

Fortwith Johnny Broaca walked off the playing field and finished in Chapter One what promised to be the story of a brilliant college baseball career.

Do You Remember

By Lucy Walling

THE next morning Eve discovered the Copper Bell Antique Shoppe.

"Oh—what a cute set of corner shelves!" Eve exclaimed. "How I'd love to have it for our dining room."

Dick responded with his non-committal "Hm, a what-not." Eve glanced up at him quickly. "You don't like it," she accused. "Why, Dick? What's wrong with it?" she persisted.

"Well," Dick explained reluctantly, "it's not really old—fifty years, perhaps. That wouldn't matter, though, if it were good of its kind, but it isn't. Late Victorian—too late. Cheap machine carving."

"For the present—if we could afford it—this water bench would be a more useful piece for us. Pennsylvania Dutch. The open shelves above would display plates and bric-a-brac as well or better than the what-not and the cupboard below would provide useful storage space."

"But it's so frightfully shabby," Eve objected.

"It could be painted any color you'd like," answered Dick simply. "Well, it would be nice," agreed Eve. "Better than the what-not. But you wouldn't be so fond of that, Corner shelves are fashionable again."

Dick was unperturbed. "Some of these things are graceful and pretty," he conceded. "Aunt Sophronia had one with spool turnings. Probably has it stowed away in the attic. We'll see sometime when we're down east."

"And do look at this, Dick," Eve tugged at his arm and drew him to a corner of the shop to look at a chest of drawers. "Oh, Dick, we ought to have this. You can't say it's not old."

"Dick surveyed the piece but without enthusiasm. 'Knobs fastened on with wood screws. Pat together with wood pins. About a hundred years,' he estimated its age. 'Perhaps more. And a good job of veneering. The bracket feet and the carved acanthus leaves on the posts are rather unusual. And it has a serpentine top drawer. Not bad.'"

"Not bad," Eve mocked him. "Is that the most praise you can give it? Don't you think we might buy it, Dick? This and the water bench and that cute little stand over there—the one with two drawers and drop leaves."

Dick looked. "The 'cute little stand' is buried apple wood," he said. "It probably would set us back the price of two months' rent."

But Eve would not let her enthusiasm be dampened. She pounced upon a pair of candlesticks in sparkling yellow glass. The staff was in the form of a fish, balancing itself gracefully on its chin. "Oh—" she exclaimed, "aren't these simply darling, Dick?"

Dick grinned tolerantly. "Can't say that they are," he returned. "Never could see anything particularly darling about a dolphin—or any other fish, for that matter." He picked up one of the pair, looked at the price mark and set it down with great care. "Fifty dollars for the pair!" he ejaculated. "If not darling, they're at least dear," he conceded. Eve looked at him reproachfully. He knew she hated puns.

HERE'S HOW

TO SPEND LESS ON MOTORING!

Do as over two out of every five buyers of low-priced cars are doing: SAVE WITH A NEW CHEVROLET! You'll spend less to begin with—because the Chevrolet base price of $445 is so much lower than the price of any other Fisher Body car! You'll make fewer stops for gas and oil, because the Chevrolet six-cylinder engine can go well over two hundred miles on a tankful! You won't have to be worrying about seeing the service man all the time, or paying a lot of repair bills because—well, Chevrolet just isn't that kind of car. It's built right and stays that way. Finally—you can look forward to getting a good price when you trade your Chevrolet in—its resale value is notably high.

Can you say all these same things about any other low-priced car? Evidently America thinks not—from the way that America prefers to SAVE with a Chevrolet.

A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast.

A tree that looks at God all day

A tree that may in summer wear

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.

Sarajero Incident on Saenger Screen

Kay Francis, Walter Huston, Nils Asther Here Tuesday Only

History lessons told in sugarcoted form in straight dramatic movies are more and more becoming a feature of the talkies.

"Abraham Lincoln" is a case in point. Another was "Gabriel Over the White House," which showed the minutiae of a President's life. "Billy the Kid" reproduced faithfully the life of a great historical desperado. "Rasputin and the Empress" placed in film incident after incident of the life of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia.

The latest historical incident to find its way into an entertainment type movie is the assassination of the Archduke Ferdinand of Austria at Sarajero, the incident which brought about the World War. This striking scene forms the start of "Storm at Daybreak," at the Saenger Tuesday only, with a 2:30 bargain matinee, and exciting love story of Hungary behind the lines in war time.

The assassination is only a small incident in the flow of this romance, but it is depicted on the screen with faultless accuracy. Dramatically it forms an excuse for Nils Asther, a Hungarian officer, to rescue his friend, Walter Huston, from the hands of an excited mob. Later, when Asther and Huston's wife, Kay Francis, fall in love, the incident attains added significance.

SEDITIONARY POLICY

Would you concede that there may be a reason for this, with which any personal objectives have nothing to do? These men are appalled to discover that the N-R-A is not what the country is being made to think it is, at all. Gentle business men are in revolt over the Codes because they are compelled to give up the very vitals of their business secrets, not to the Federal Government made up of their own kind of people—who can respect confidences thus made—but to one Dr. Alexander Sachs of the Lehman Corporation, the Hebrew Babson's. This supposed "statistician" is in a position to pass on to the American businessman's Jewish competitors the full detail of his business, how many people he is working and how much he is paying them, who his customers are and what his volume of business with them, what stocks he has on hand sold or unsold, and all the rest of the ammunition needed by a Jewish competitor to knock the Gentile out of business.

The President has practically set aside his Cabinet in favor of a Jewish cabinet utterly dominated by Bernard Baruch, in which such Gentiles as are represented are only Jewish "fronts" . . . we have private dossiers on all of these men and they represent interests that are the most radical and Communist that we have in America at the present time. Now the trend of activity is to bring about the abolition of Congress, as a form for representatives of the people, on the argument that representatives are only pin-heads whose talk upsets the orderly reconstruction of business. Really, of course, they want Congress abolished because it is the last medium for protection of the individual citizen's Constitutional rights.

You are at perfect liberty to go ahead and agitate for the overthrow or subversion of the American Government. If you are touting these Soviet directed measures in full enlightenment of just what is afoot. If you are not enlightened and doing it in mistaken idealism, we should be glad to see that you get the facts substantiating what I have declared above. In any event, please suspend judgment on The Silver Legion until you are fully informed as to its wholesome and constructive objectives. We are fighting imminent Sovietism in American industrial and political life because we love our country and believe in the worth of Christian institutions.

Fraternally yours,

1 Per Cent Limit on Bank Currency

Bank Commissioner Determined to Stop Wholesale Robberies in State

LITTLE ROCK—Invoking powers granted him by the legislature last winter, Bank Commissioner Marion Wasson Saturday night issued a blanket order to all Arkansas banks, effecting immediate drastic restrictions upon the handling of cash by the institutions.

Mr. Wasson issued an order in April restricting the amount of cash which might be held by banks, and requiring that excess cash be kept under time locks. However Saturday's order went much further than that issued in April, limiting the amount of cash which might be kept on hand to one per cent of the deposits of the bank.

The commissioner commented cautiously upon the inability of courts to provide needed protection for depositors of banks, and he recalled the case of one bank robber who, while free under bond pending his trial, robbed two other banks. The number of bank robberies in the state has caused many insurance companies to dis-continue writing burglary and robbery insurance here.

You're always saying Chesterfields taste better

—I wish you'd tell me why

Well, I've worked in tobacco; I've manufactured cigarettes . . . and I'll tell you why Chesterfields taste better.

For a cigarette to have a good taste, it must have first the right kind of Domestic tobacco. This means ripe, mellow, sweet tobacco, filled with Southern sunshine. Then, blended and cross-blended with this tobacco there must be the right quantity of the right kinds of aromatic Turkish tobacco . . . tobacco that has a pleasing flavor and aroma.

Aroma, as you know, adds to the taste. It's just like the pleasing aroma from certain foods. It's appetizing. It makes the food taste better. It makes the cigarette taste better.

Then again, for a cigarette to have a good taste, it must be made right. The size, the cigarette paper, everything about it must be right.

Just try Chesterfields.

AFTER MOMENTS OF FRANTIC SEARCHING, WASH FINDS A FIGURE CLINGING TO A CHUNK OF ICE. HE PULLS THE FIGURE OUT. IT IS EASY.

BOY! WOTTA RELIEF! I THOUGHT YOU WERE DEAD.

WHERE'S SLUGG?

NEVER MIND. HE PROBABLY ESCAPED HOURS AGO.

By CRANE

NO, HE WAS HIDING ABOARD THE SHIP, TRIED TO FRY ME BIG FIGHT, THEN AN EXPLOSION. I NEVER SAW HIM AGAIN.

IF YOU ASK ME BUDDIE, I'D SAY HE PROBABLY GOT WOT WAS COMING TO 'IM.

SA-A-Y! MISS PAT! THINK'S YOU'RE JUST ABOUT THE NICEST BOY SHE EVER MET—SHE TOLD ME SO HERSELF!

I CAN'T IMAGINE ANYONE DOING A THING LIKE THAT!
